

Recognising building excellence

The Registered Master Builders House of the Year celebrates and acknowledges the achievements of our members. Gold, Silver and Bronze Awards are presented to competition entries throughout New Zealand. These awards are highly prestigious and confirm the Registered Master Builders Association's commitment to building excellence.

What do the quality marks mean for you?

The quality marks are only available to award-winning entrants. They are a tangible stamp you can use to demonstrate the high quality of your work and your status as an award-winning builder/contractor.

Achieving the pinnacle of building excellence

What does a Bronze, Silver or Gold Award mean?

Each entry is judged and marked out of a possible 2,000 points.

- Bronze is awarded to entrants achieving at least 1,500 points or 75% of the points available.
- Silver is awarded to entrants achieving at least 1,650 points or 82.5% of the points available.
- Gold is awarded to entrants achieving at least 1800 points or 90% of the points available.

This means you and your clients can be confident that the award for your property whether Bronze, Silver or Gold – represents an extremely high standard of building.

How many awards are given out?

All entrants have the chance to receive a Bronze, Silver or Gold Award. At the same time if a property does not achieve the minimum of 1500 points then no award will be given.

How does the judging work?

The entries in each region are judged by the same panel of two judges e.g. a New Home up to $450,000 in Wellington will be judged by the same two people that will judge all other categories in Wellington.

Due to the commitment of the Registered Master Builders Association and the national family of sponsors, the awards structure and judging process is constantly being updated and enhanced to promote quality standards and provide fairer, more representative and recognisable results for all participants and the public.
